NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS.—The fifth annual district-state high school contest was held last Saturday with tests and programs given at the five state colleges. The purpose was to determine the best pupils and the best schools of the state from a scholarship standpoint. A total of 5,050 pupils representing 200 teams from that many county, city, exempted villages and private high schools participated in the tests. The examinations were conducted at Ohio State University, Ohio University, Miami University, Bowling Green State College and Kent State College, with the state divided into five districts. Each team consisted of not to exceed 30 members, and the tests covered fifteen subjects contained in the high school curriculum. Students and teams receiving grades of 75 per cent and over were declared state winners. These will assemble in the auditorium at the Central High School, Columbus, at 10 a. m., Saturday, May 19, to receive state scholarship awards. The state High School Senior awards will be made at the same time. Many sections of the state will be represented. Ray G. Wood, State Director of Scholarship Tests, will be in charge.

The State Department of Agriculture has issued a list of Ohio county and independent fairs to be held this year, with the dates of each. In addition, the Ohio State Fair is booked for August 27-Sept. 1. Twenty-three county fairs will be held, starting off with two, Greene and Logan, the first week in August. The last county fair will be Putnam's, the second week of October. The first independent fair will be Ashley's Aug. 1-3, and two independents will be as late as December, Bluffton's Dec. 12-14 and Putnam-Allen at Columbus Grove, Dec. 26-29.

The interior of the vast dome of the State House is now resplendent in bright new colors since the work of renovating and redecorating the Capitol building has been completed. The network of high scaffolding that was erected in the rotunda of the famous structure was removed last week, revealing a pleasing view.

The last three years has shown a large decrease in the number of foreign-born persons naturalized in Ohio, according to figures compiled by Secretary of State George S. Myers. In the statistical year ending June 30, 1933, there were 3,472 persons naturalized in the state. This compares with the preceding year's total of 4,506 as a decrease of 23 per cent, and a 38 per cent decrease from the 1931 total of 5,575. The relationship with earlier years shows the 1933 figure to be 22 per cent above the 1920 total of 2,709, and 5.8 per cent above the 1920 total of 3,282. In 1933, 19 per cent, or 651, of those naturalized were born in Germany, 16 per cent in the British Islands, 13 per cent in Italy, and 12 per cent gave Poland as their native land. Thus about 60 per cent of those naturalized came from four countries.

Bobby Jones of Radnor, Ohio, who will reach home next week after a 15,000-mile trip to Hawaii and western states as national president of the Future Farmers of America, will describe his remarkable trip in an interview in the National Farm and Home Hour national broadcast at noon May 14. Jones, who is only 17 years of age, spoke almost daily to farm and civic organizations when not actually traveling.

Under a new policy inaugurated recently by the state library thousands of volumes on its shelves are at the disposal of the inmates of all of the state's institutions for the asking. In response to the offer made three months ago by Paul A. T. Noon, state librarian, that the state's wards may have free use of these books, the circulation of the library has been trebled. Twenty-one of the 30 CCC camps in Ohio have taken advantage of the library's offer to send books. Recently, also 600 volumes were sent to the penitentiary. In the past three months 28,987 books have thus been circulated among the state's relief workers and indigent, its prisoners, and its ill and infirm.

COUNCIL MEETING

The regular meeting of council was held Monday evening but only routine business was transacted. Property owners on Miller street were given permission to oil that street at their own expense, however the village will clean the street. It is likely property owners on Elm and Church streets will also oil in the same manner.

LOCAL HISTORICAL SKETCH WRITTEN BY JOSEPH OSBORN

About the time the railroad reached Cedarville during the last 40 years, many very interesting events having occurred.

I close with a reference to some soldiers, and briefly to Rev. J. F. Morton. From the roster of Cedarville township soldiers, I learn that families of the name of Batchelder, Brown, Bromagen, Beard, Cooper, Cross, Carter, Loy, Gillett and Wilson, came and built handsome residences. They soon became prominent citizens. James Dunlap, born in Ireland, became a very patriotic American and a zealous Republican. He lost one of his sons in the Civil war. His daughter, Mary, married the Hon. Andrew Jackson. Their three daughters, educated and cultured, are married. Frank is township clerk. The Randall brothers came nearly 60 years ago to Cedarville. Prof. K. Randall, principal of the Spring Valley schools, is the grandson of Israel Randall, an earnest Christian and useful citizen. Eight Union soldiers belonged to these Randall families. Some of them served in the 10th O. V. L. A., under Capt J. R. Crain, now an ex-postmaster of Jamestown, and formerly a resident of Cedarville.

More than fifty years ago, Bloss Bird, a man whose integrity of character has been transmitted to his children, made his home in Cedarville. Rev. Walter Condon, of Clarion, Iowa, is his grandson. His son, Robert Bird, is a leading merchant of Cedarville.

Esq. Robt. Irvin was another good citizen. His son Samuel suffered much in Southern prisons during the war. His widow and her son reside here; also his sister. Laughlin McLean, a good Christian, came with his family about 1850. Two of his sons, John and Alex McLean, were soldiers. They still reside in Cedarville.

John Owens and Greenbury Milburn went into the army, but were too old for the hardships they had to endure. Greenbury Milburn's brothers, Aaron, Joseph and Robert, enlisted, Joseph losing his life in the Kanawha Valley. Joseph Milburn, another brother was the late postmaster of Xenia. I think another brother, Rev. Wesley Milburn, of Xenia, deceased, also enlisted. He lost his sight.

Dr. Andrew Winter, brought up in South Carolina, left Columbia and all his property and friends the night the news reached him that Ft. Sumter had fallen into the hands of the Confederates under Beauregard, and he hastened to Tennessee and there enlisted as a private in the Union army, in the 1st Tenn. Vol. Inf. He became surgeon, and near the close of the war located in Cedarville, O., where he married Miss Nancy Turnbull, and successfully practiced medicine until 1891, when his death occurred. His widow and children live in the old home. Mrs. Dr. Winter is a granddaughter of Judge Samuel Kyle, the pioneer. Dr. Winter did not know of another Union man in South Carolina when he enlisted.

This list could be extended indefinitely, but it is not my wish to attempt anything like a complete account. I only call attention to a few salient features connected with some of the early settlers, necessarily leaving many points untouched, which other correspondents can present, especially the multitude of events since the Civil war, and the rapid

WE NEED A CLEANUP CAMPAIGN

With the summer season at hand there has been no concerted movement towards a general cleanup in town. We certainly need some activity along that line and you can be convinced without argument if you only take glance up most of the alleys in town. Trash and ash heaps abound in great numbers, which if left will not add to the general health of the community. Such places are breeding places for flies and all unsanitary places should be looked after immediately to aid in control of a mosquito epidemic. Why wait to be asked to clean up?

ONE YEAR CALLS FOR A TRIAL OF SOMETHING NEW

We are now reaching the end of a year's fair trial of regimentation of all kinds of business, including farming, and the farmer is about regimented to the scrap heap. Large industries known in the past as lines produced by concerns in the various trusts, have prospered to a large extent. Small business has suffered regardless of all claims. The average citizen has less than he had a year ago due to the fact that everything purchased had increased while in most cases income had dwindled. Labor has had some increase in wages, but after supplying the wants of the home for the week at the new high prices, the family budget is found in the red.

The American people have been patient while the experimentation of untried ventures have been carried on. There is now every indication of unrest at every turn and with a "classes. Even where labor has been granted increase in wages, strikes abound in all lines in an effort to get back to the spending spree days of 1929. Unless there is a return to something more conservative before midsummer the whole so-called recovery program will pass from the evolution stage to a genuine revolution and such a thing as a civil rebellion might be closer to the corner than the oft-mentioned prosperity.

The future promises little encouraging for the more prosperous days from December until April passed with the ending of the CWA spending spree. There has of course been some gain in some lines of business outside of the CWA spending, but it has not been general over the country. The best index of how things stand today in that the hotel business has dropped fifty per cent the past sixty days over what it was last November. Hundreds of salesmen are being withdrawn each month due to the fact that retail stores are loaded with unsold goods. Weather conditions early in April checked retail sales. The discontinuance of CWA did much to slow retail trade so that the natural increase in business was not there and the little boom was of the inflation order.

The administration has made some mistakes in what from the first was intended and accepted by the public as an earnest effort to incubate business. Mistakes in new ventures can be overlooked but asinine blunders on pet theories from textbook exponents that have never enjoyed a day of practical test will no longer be accepted by the people.

A friend of the writer just a few days returned from Washington where he had business with different departments covering a two weeks stay. He came in direct contact with the heads of several departments and brings back the word that every effort is to be made to regiment all classes of business and citizens as if we were preparing for another World War. When he remarked to the head of an important department that the farm program had thus far been a failure and promised little in the future he was informed that the farmer has no reason to complain for he has a home to live in and plenty to eat while millions are hungry and can be set out into the street. It has never been the plan of the brain-trusters that there would be any great profit to business or farming interests. If there is to be a profit the income tax is to reduce it. Our informant was shocked when told the farmer, to be patriotic, must be content with a living for a few years and do his part towards feeding the nation for he was being paid for not producing the usual crop. Such is the first year of the recovery program.

LOWLY, BUT PRETTY AND USEFUL

Consider the lowly dandelion—the rowdy, hoydenish, common, vulgar dandelion, imp of the lawn. How bold, how thrifty, how colorful, and how it lives with an almost disgusting exuberance for the worldly pleasures of the sun, the wind and the rain, and how even in old age its fine gray head has a fascination.

It digs its roots in deeply and raises its yellow head proudly upward. It may be a pest to the picky lawn keeper, but it is a joy to children. Who doesn't remember of poking a dandelion under any convenient chin in a solemn effort to learn whether its owner liked butter? Or of blowing off the gray hairs of an aged flower and watching the fine, little seeds, mounted upon wings, go sailing merrily in the wind? And what little girl has never split the ends of the dandelion stem and wet them in her mouth until they curled so prettily that she couldn't resist sticking them behind her ear and pretending they were ringlets?

Never more than this spring have they made such brilliant splashes of yellow. They are like golden plush, so brilliant as to be dazzling and as irrelevant toward the more dignified lawns which they adorn and the more aristocratic flowers which need to be cultivated as any urchin of the streets is toward the more sedate adults who surround him.

If only dandelions were rare, how much they would be appreciated, and how carefully they would be cultivated, both for their beauty and their more useful qualities.

They take root quickly in fresh, new topsoil, or in ground that for some reason has been disturbed. The tiny seeds lodge against a small clod of earth or beneath a pebble and at the first rain take root. In about two years they are big fellows—almost bushy, and if the leaves are gathered together at the top and tied they will blanch almost like celery. And, like celery, or rather, more like lettuce, they make a good salad, if salad dressing, like French dressing, for instance, is used on them.

Or, if anyone wants to cultivate them, and some people do, the plants should be placed out in the fall in a well pulverized bed of rich soil, and in the spring should be covered with dirt until only the tips show above ground. Again they bleach like celery. The have a peculiar, bitter taste, which many people like, but which, if it is to repugnant, can be controlled by the use of a strong or tart dressing.

Their use as greens is widely known. They are wholesome and nourishing, but, again, to some the taste is too bitter. If a handful of young onions—tops and all—is dropped into the pot of greens and cooked with them the bitterness will disappear, and there will be no onion taste either.

The poor dandelion, maligned as it is, has a difficult time of living. If a man wants to get rid of them the best way to do it is not by digging them out, but by encouraging the grass to grow. Within a few years the grass will crowd out the dandelions until only a few are left. The have the souls of tramps and don't flourish quite so well in the more civilized and sedate surroundings.—Columbus Dispatch.

If the country wants a revolution events will bring that about. No revolution was ever started by federal or state officials.

Mother's Day brings another milestone to all that observed the day last year. Lay away your worldly troubles and reverently observe it again this year.

If history repeats itself what a fine future generations will have when they see the way we live now.

Much has been said not only in the public prints but privately about the brain-trusters that have been drawn from the different universities in the country. If one sought a fountain source for new ideas the average university might be regarded the factory for nut ideas and it is from this source that both national and state politics and public affairs are being directed. For some years the university professors, that get so big they frown on smaller educational institutions, have had a part in state governments. Just at present Ohio State is supplying the nation with "brains." It is not necessary that these men have practical experience in either government, finance, railroading, farming or business. They have decreed among themselves, with the indulgence of other classes, that their judgment is supreme for nothing can go wrong once the theoretical has been true to their satisfaction. They have nothing to loose, for it might be said the people of the nation are the guinea pigs for experimentation, and the funds they expend never did and probably never will come out of their pocketbooks, as they all live at the expense of the taxpayers.

Few likely have never given thought as to how much of the Ohio government in the past, as well as present, is the product of some type of brain-truster. During the Cooper administration Dr. Walker of the O. S. U. was called upon to lift the state to a higher standard. Gov. Cooper gave him a free hand, laws and even the state constitution were set aside and what a sorry mess it turned out for the then Governor. Some years ago Ohio established what was known as the Legislative Reference Bureau, composed of O. S. U. experts, and it was only by having a bill drawn in this department, or having its approval, that it could get into the legislative hopper. Gov. White has made good use of the inexperienced university professor who may know his Greek, but never had a day of actual experience at the factory bench, counting house or on the farm. Just a few days ago Gov. White drew upon the knowledge of a brain-truster who comes forward with a cure-all for the building and loans in Ohio, yet previous to that date was never known in financial circles and never heard of by nine out of ten citizens in the state. The Governor even presents this knowledge at this late date after his own legislature passed supposed corrective laws some months back that guaranteed sweeping reforms, in building and loan operation. The public swallowed the idea, not knowing different, but the legislation proved to be nothing more than a political move to wreck building and loans by liquidation to put favored politicians on the pay roll at handsome salaries at the expense of stockholders and depositors. No town or city in the country has had a more sorrowful experience as a result of this wrecking plan than the city of Dayton. It is to the credit of C. R. Titlow, Bath township farmer, who now heads the Dayton loan depositors protection committee, that the victims are to have some protection against the White wrecking crew.

Gen. Johnson, NRA Chief, has come and gone so far as his Columbus trip is concerned. Billed as visiting that city at the request of the Ohio Manufacturers Association, it proved nothing more than a coupe to give a little limelight to Cong. Lamneck, Gov. White, candidate for Senator, and a few other Democrats of lesser notoriety. The Gen. wanted the largest building in the city to accommodate the crowd and Gov. White used the coliseum on the State Fair Grounds. The huge building seats 15,000 but for some reason not all the Democratic officeholders attended for the crowd was estimated at 4,000, and there are more than that number of state, county and city faithful on the public payroll who are residents of Columbus and Franklin county.

The General did not have the usual punch in his speech and it lacked the "cracking down" force evident in former public addresses. This time he came, and as it were, knelt down before his Democratic brethren, begging for support of the NRA. Judging from public comment from those who heard him over the radio the talk fell flat. It lacked sincerity for the public today knows more about the movement than it did months ago. Promising labor a ten per cent increase in wages and charging twenty-five per cent more for the necessities of life is not going to last long. Already the price of the commodities made and marketed under the NRA is far beyond the purchasing power of the people. There are yet a few Democrats that are not on the public payroll and must work to earn their daily bread and pay the higher prices, so this may account for only 4000 people greeting the General.

As to price fixing and providing heavy fines and prison sentences for those who sell certain goods or services below code prices under the NRA, it took a high standing Democratic judge, Stanley Matthews, Cincinnati, to fire the first charge into the NRA. Iowa refused to follow the suggestion of the National administration to provide for state enforcement with heavy fines for violators. The Illinois legislature is fighting a similar demand. Gov. White forced his weak-kneed legislature under a penalty of no patronage to adopt the federal suggestion. The Cincinnati judge reduced the Ohio law to a pulp and threw it out of the window. It was a brave stroke that may cost him his head, even if Gen. Johnson has to order it delivered to him on a charger. There is a higher court in session just at present according to the view of many people, if the weather conditions are to be taken into consideration. Many of the western states, like the central, are suffering with drought and crops are not in sight, not even for human consumption let alone live stock. The Kaiser once admitted he was in partnership with God. Probably the German ward-lord could be induced to turn his seat over to Gen. Johnson until he could map out a plan for some NRA rainfall or propose a code or military rule that guarantees moisture for crops. While planning such a program it would be well to have the rains regimented.

Gov. White, whose administration is best noted for extravagance, higher taxes, legalized race horse gambling and the legalized and glorified saloon, had a legislature much to his liking, and it finally got from under his control. Most of the members, Democrats out numbering Republicans in both houses, began to feel the Executive had taken advantage of their good nature and finally rebelled at orders. These men had a sense of responsibility after all and knew they could not face the voters at home if they were to be held accountable even for the cheap black-strap whiskey being sold in state stores. Tax problems bothered the members as much as the complaint of the rotten liquor being sold legally at holdup prices. After weeks of effort with members personally broke, and the state many thousands of dollars in the hole, it was impossible for the bosses to hold the members in line. Gov. White became alarmed and public sentiment with caustic criticism was leaving at his door. His final act was to "prorogue" the session, that is adjourn it when the members could not agree. The Gov. promises to call another special session in June and the public should insist that members rebel and refuse to support any more legislation, regardless of brand or the apparent need. It is time to call a halt on such an administration as the state has faced the past two years. The Gov. has given us race horse gambling, high taxes, cheap whiskey and several thousand additional public officials. That should be enough for one administration.

John Dillinger, Chicago gangster who has taken first place in the news away from Al Capone, was pardoned last year by Gov. McNutt of Indiana. Since then Dillinger has terrorized bankers and citizens in a dozen states. Previous to the confinement in the Indiana prison Dillinger had a bad record yet the Governor for some reason gave a pardon. Criticism has been caustic but it took the action of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association to build a fire under the Democratic administration in that state that brought forth a wall never before known. The Republican press advocated the Democrats drop the "donkey" as an emblem and adopt the "wooden pistol," the tool used by Dillinger to bluff his way out of a county jail.

What actually took place or what was said at the brain-trust cocktail party as to where this country was headed matters little today. Congress gave the learned "doctors" a clean bill of sale as was to be expected, once the investigating committee was given close inspection. Cock-tails at a brain trust meeting would confuse and muddle the mind of the "Lizzies" present. Lenin might have been an idol of worship for government in inspiration but we would rather think more of the brain-trusters swore allegiance to King Alcohol. No wonder the "Lizzies" present could not recall what might or might not have been said that would reflect on this country.

Seven bank holdups in Ohio in thirteen days and Dillinger and Bowman still at large. Regardless of the fact that bank bandits forced bank employees to ride on the automobiles, not a member of the State Police Patrol has been injured. There is now some apprehension some over by fleeing bank bandits. If highway protection is needed we suggest a vacation for the patrolmen, with pay of course, and divide up the highway system with the Boy Scouts on duty this summer. In each case the bank bandits departed in automobiles and not one of them used an airplane. For this reason we must have more protection for highway patrolmen.

The Ohio Senate refused to confirm two of Gov. White's liquor control board appointments, along with that of Col. Hughes, the Gen. Johnson of the booze business in the state. In as much as the Senate is strongly Democratic it would appear that the house is seriously divided and the Gov. given quite a slap. Col. Hughes is a dictator and refuses to even follow the Ohio law that requires the sale of good whiskey aged in wood at least four years. The quality of the goods being sold is said to be very poor and also contains much poison, in fact more than is ordinarily found in bootleg goods. Little of the state liquor is made from grain which of course is not helping the farmer any and he was promised better grain prices on the repeal of prohibition owing to the great consumption of grain for liquor. The Gov. may not be remembered by the farmers at the coming primary.

A county sheriff down in Fairfield county received a tip of three strangers in a back hill camp that might be the escaped Ohio penitentiary birds. The official took his little delegation to the scene, walked in on the gangsters and ordered hands up before the trio could arm themselves. They had the same arms with them that were stolen from the prison guards. The Fairfield county Sheriff delivered his charges to the penitentiary within three hours after receiving the tip. The Ohio Rural police read about the capture of the gangsters in the morning papers.

State Auditor Tracy has been digging into some things that are going on in the White administration in Columbus. He finds that state employees are not only drawing salaries from the state but the federal government as well. For instance John Gilbert, chief of the division of labor statistics draws a salary of $227 from the state and has also drawn $107 from the federal government. A long list of state employees are drawing two salaries, the second being from the federal government. If the state and federal relief divisions are ever given a close inspection the public will find the politicians have been well cared for while the unemployed had to at least play at work to get a few groceries.

Regardless of the fact that the processing taxes have killed the hog market as well as the dairy prices, it is now proposed to increase these taxes. A year ago hogs were four cents and pork chops, best cuts, 15c a pound. Today hogs are little over three cents and the same cuts are 25c a pound, and no demand for pork. A little more tax of the processing nature and hog feeders will cease to exist.

One of the largest mail order houses in the country is advertising in an unusual way. The firm states that it desires to continue the sale of auto tires at prices that save auto owners money but after May 14 the price must be advanced 20 per cent to meet the requirements of the NRA code. Tires will not be the only thing to have prices boosted. Most everything in the retail market is going up from 20 to fifty per cent whether your income is increased or not. Three cheers and a tiger for Gen. Johnson, who draws a fat salary at the expense of the taxpayers.

Temperance Notes

Sponsored by Cedarville W. C. T. U.

Senator Dixon of Iowa has said, according to the Church Herald: "A year ago I had $100 in gold in my pocket, I was a law abiding citizen; if I per chance had a pint of whisky I was a criminal. Today, if I have the whisky, I am a law abiding citizen but if I have the gold I am a criminal, violating the law."

"Of all intoxicating drinks, beer is the most animalizing. It dulls the intellectual and moral and feeds the sensual and beastly nature. Long observation has assured us that a large proportion of murders deliberately planned and executed without passion or malice are done by beer drinkers," says the Home Life Insurance Company.

Beer boosters, before the birth of this 32 "non-intoxicating" intoxicant, promised that the return of beer would give the federal government revenue variously estimated at from one to five billions per year. The internal revenue bureau has just issued its February report showing that, at the rate for that month the returns for beer will aggregate a little over $110,000,000, or less than a dime to the dollar of the campaign estimates. —National Voice.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer of April 10 said:

"When the prohibition amendment was repealed last December 5, by the vote of the necessary 30th state, Utah, repealists hailed the first practical step toward sane methods of liquor control.

There was a widespread feeling of satisfaction. There was a conviction that the evils which had grown up under prohibition were ended. Perhaps most importantly, we felt assured that the speakasy and the bootlegger would disappear, for in all discussion of prohibition by repealist the abolition of the speakasy and the elimination of the bootlegger after repeal were taken for granted. Yet four months after repeal speakasies are by no means a rarity in Cleveland. A high ranking officer in the Cleveland police department has estimated that there must be 1,000 bootleg joints in the city." The Plain Dealer was a very enthusiastic advocate for repeal.

RECIPES

FOR YOUR COOK BOOK TRY THEM

By Miss Inez Plotner

Macaroni and spaghetti are foods that might well be used by a far greater number of American people.

There are several varieties: macaroni, spaghetti, and vermicelli. Macaroni is the largest. Vermicelli is the smallest. Vermicelli is the smallest and does not have a hole through the center.

Macaroni has been given high rank as a food, high in two of the important food elements—starch, the heat producing element and gluten—the tissue building element.

When macaroni is served as the main dish at a luncheon or supper, it is not necessary to serve meat or eggs.

Macaroni is one of the least expensive of foods.

Macaroni may be combined with left over meats and it is then called, a meat extender, that is, it makes a small quantity of meat go a long way in the meal.

With a little thought macaroni can be used as the chief ingredient of many delightful dishes. The accompanying recipes are two suggestions. The use of a cream sauce with macaroni increases its food value.

Spaghetti Salad
2 C cooked macaroni—add
1 C chopped celery
1 green pepper chopped
1 pimento chopped
1 onion chopped
1 apple chopped
Add mayonnaise
Toss—do not stir.

Baked Macaroni With Mushrooms

Make a sauce of
1 can tomato soup
3-4 C water
2 T flour
2 T butter
1-4 t pepper
1-4 t red pepper
1 t Worcestershire
1-4 salt
Add 1-1-2 c grated cheese.
Cook slowly until cheese is melted. Arrange in alternate layers 2 C macaroni (before cooking) and 18 large mushrooms sliced. Pour on sauce, sprinkle with 1-2 c grated cheese—bake at 400 until brown.

Cement Workers Go Out On Strike

Three hundred workers in the South-Western and Wabash cement plants at Osborn went out on a strike early Tuesday, demanding a 20 per cent increase in wages. The plants have operated during recent months in a limited way due to poor demand for cement. Both concerns are owned by companies that have plants elsewhere in the country and it is hinted both might be closed down permanently if the strike continues. Xenia lost a shoe factory employing 600 men and women largely due to labor trouble.

Farmer Suicides By Hanging In Barn

Charles J. Baughn, 48, well known farmer of South Charleston, committed suicide Sunday by hanging himself to the rafters of a barn on his farm. He had been in ill health for three years and had become despondent. He had informed his family that he was going to his farm near the village. Not returning the family caused an investigation finding the body hanging from the rafters.

The deceased was born in Fayette county and is a brother of Sheriff John Baughn of this county. He is survived by his widow, a daughter, and four brothers. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon.

Ignores Charge Of Manslaughter

Charles Walker, 37, colored, Xenia, charged with manslaughter, arising from the death of William Roan, 41, colored World War veteran last Feb. 14, escaped prosecution when the May grand jury ignored his case at a one-day session in Common Pleas Court Monday.

The investigating tribunal considered four cases, returning indictments against two and ignoring two cases. William Conley, Cedarville, was jury foreman.

UNUSUAL ATTRACTIONS AT SPRINGFIELD THEATERS

The Regent Theater, Springfield, will open next Sunday with "We're Not Dressing," the production that has been receiving so much comment from metropolitan critics as being the first musical adventure-romance ever to strike the screen. An engrossing plot and compelling story form a background for a series of especially fine song numbers and some of the most cleverly enacted comedy angles of recent years. Bing Crosby, Burns and Allen, Carole Lombard, Leon Errol and Ethel Merman are featured in an imposing cast.

At the State Theater starting Saturday "Such Women are Dangerous," starring Warner Baxter and featuring Rosemary Ames, Mong Barrie and Rochelle Hudson, takes headline position. This is a romantic mystery drama that has taken exceptionally high rating wherever it has been exhibited and it brings Warner Baxter the type of adventure sensation that roles that he enacts so well. The mingling of romance, mystery and startling drama is reported as having been very adroitly handled.

The Fairbanks Theater will open Sunday with "Man of Two Worlds," featuring Francis Lederer. This is the picture that set New York agog and caused so much controversy as to whether or not the thrills and adventures of this production excelled those of the far-famed "Eskimo." Every report indicates that this is in another of those highly polished has proven so popular with theatergoers during the past year.

Need Is For Fewer But Better Chicks

Little Relation Between Size
Of Flock and Profits
From Poultry

Start fewer but better chicks this year.

This is the suggestion of P. B. Zumbro, extension specialist in poultry husbandry for the Ohio State University.

Analyzing the records, kept by farmers of several hundred farm flocks, Zumbro found little relation between the number of chickens kept on the farm and profits from the poultry business.

A profit of 57 cents a hen was earned by owners of 117 flocks. Thirty-four flock owners earned $1.45 a hen. A hundred hens returned as much to one group as 250 hens returned to the other group.

Zumbro considers buying of better chicks to be the first step in "better care." Chicks all look alike, he says, but they differ widely in their potential egg laying abilities. Consider the flock and the eggs from which your chicks are obtained. He urges:

1. Securing chicks from eggs that weigh 23 to 24 ounces to the dozen. The hatchery code sets a minimum of 23 ounces to the dozen.
2. Securing chicks from hens that have been continuously culled for egg production.
3. Securing chicks from hens that have been mated with a pedigreed cockerel.
4. Securing chicks from hatcherymen or breeders who have been blood-testing for pullorum disease, that mortality may be held to the minimum.

It was a great record of leadership that Chevrolet made in 1933. . . . And this year, it's even greater. Sales are already thousands of cars ahead of last year. Production is the largest in the industry. And every day, from state after state, comes the same report on registrations: Chevrolet is leading all others! What's the reason for this success? The pictures tell the story. Chevrolet is the only low-priced car with this winning combination of five features. Chevrolet is the only manufacturer who can say:

Drive it only 5 miles

Heart to Heart Talks
... with our customers

Every Employee a REPRESENTATIVE
IN OUR COMPANY each employee considers himself THE company. To the end that customers may be properly taken care of from the greatest to the least important need, our employees are trained always to conduct themselves as representatives of a company such as ours are expected to—that is, to be prepared for whatever the customer wants in the way of service.
We ask you to remember this. Have no hesitancy when you need us to call us.

ELECTRICITY on the Farm
THE LATEST statistics from the government show that almost one million farms in our country use electric service for a variety of labor-saving uses. Think back only a very short time when electricity was not available to farmers. Wives faced drudgery from sunup to sundown. Now a low cost service is available.

WOMEN
Live Longer Today
YEARS AGO women were worn out with their household duties long before they were very well along in years. As an example, Lincoln's mother was barely 40 when she died.

THE DAYTON POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY

Today all that is changed. Mothers and wives find it is possible to enjoy leisure time in their homes, thanks to electric accessories to be had at your local stores. May we suggest you avail yourself of opportunities to do your home tasks electrically?

EASY to do Business With Us
MOST PEOPLE prefer to do business with a company that is operated in sound business ways. We pride ourselves that this is the method we pursue. Customers (to the number of more than 100,000) in the territory we serve, long ago discovered that what we agree to do we will do. In short, we adhere to the old principle that the customer must be satisfied.
It is a good business principle to serve users of our service in the manner they desire. In this way the customer is happy, we are happy and relationships of a desirable kind are maintained.

In CONCLUSION
TAKE THE BILL you receive from us each month and divide it by the number of members of your family. That will give you the cost per person per month. Then divide it by 30 days. That will give you the cost per person per day. The result will surprise you.

It's a costlier tire to build but not to buy—consider that important fact too as you look it over and we think you'll say: "Put on a set."
